Organisation overview

The Men of League Foundation (MoLF) was launched in 2002 to provide assistance and support to men, women and children of the Rugby League community. Founded by Ron Coote AM, Jim Hall and Max Brown, the Foundation now has over 28,000 members. The Foundation is a deductible gift recipient and a tax concession charity.

MoLF committees are located throughout Australia. In addition to welfare activities supporting the Rugby League community - its volunteers, female and male players at all levels of the game and their families - the Men of League Foundation is working with players on successfully transitioning from elite level sport at the end of their playing careers. Increasingly the MoLF and the NRL are collaborating on these matters, with resultant organisational change within MoLF.

Position overview

The Men of League Foundation is seeking to employ a Chief Executive Officer who, in partnership with the Board, will be responsible for driving the overall strategy and direction of the Foundation into a new stage of growth.

The successful appointee will be expected to drive the Foundation to achieve its primary objectives as determined by the Board of Directors; provide leadership and management, including a proven track record in team building, to support MoLF priorities; consult and maintain strong relationships with all stakeholders including business, NRL and Rugby League clubs, members and volunteers; and develop successful fundraising strategies.
